As we head into the 2020-2021 school year, there is a high level of uncertainty around when and how teaching and learning will take place. What we do know, however, is that all educators will need to be equipped with a purposeful action plan that will help them meet the needs of their students, create meaningful learning experiences, and implement evidence-based classroom practices.

The High Impact Schools Virtual Conference will provide the strategies and tools that every teacher and leader needs to foster excellence in any type of classroom environment. Join 15 of the most innovative minds in education for two days of interactive keynotes and breakout sessions on topics that include teacher clarity, instructional leadership, equity and wellbeing, student engagement, learning design and formative assessment.

Attendees will learn how to:

- Leverage research-based practices that support virtual, blended, and in-person teaching and learning
- Create meaningful connections that promote inclusion, engagement, equity, and wellbeing
- Implement accessible strategies that empower students, stimulate feedback, and accelerate achievement
