About this Learning Opportunity

Please note: the webinar information (link and how to access the webinar) will be emailed to you 2 hours prior to the webinar start time. If you have not received the webinar link by then, please email info@erlc.ca.

Children and adolescents with continuous access to books achieve higher academic success and experience greater engagement with reading. Unfortunately, too many young people live in “book deserts” without meaningful access to books at school and home. In this workshop, participants will examine and discuss the current research on book and technology access, students' intellectual, social and cultural access needs, family and community-involvement suggestions, instructional moves and strategies, and resources for developing high-quality, relevant book collections.

This session addresses the LQS competencies
